Current Position

David is an Associate Health & safety Consultant for Connaught Compliance Training Services, with a background in environmental training.

Professional Background

David began his professional career working at landfill sites progressing from the role of Clerk to Site Manager. His responsibilities have included the enforcement of health & safety legislation, ensuring efficient operation of waste inputs, introducing risk assessments and instructing staff on how to conduct them, and developing a Site Emergency Plan which involved training Incident Controllers. David also worked for the first landfill site in the UK to be awarded the British Council 5 star rating at Shanks Waste Services, which was also accredited with ISO14001.

David then moved into training as Head of Environmental Protection Training for the MoD at RAF Halton, there he delivered training to wide range of MoD civil servants and military staff on environmental protection subjects. He then went on to become Environment, Health & Safety Coordinator responsible for all aspects of environmental management and health & safety issues at one of the UK's largest cement factories.

David has also worked as an Overland Expedition Leader in Africa and is a Special Constable for Hertfordshire Police.

Areas of Expertise

David uses his vast expertise and background in environmental training courses such as the IEMA Associate Certificate in Environmental Management and IOSH Managing Environmental Responsibilities, as well as other IOSH short courses including Managing Safely.
